Introduction

The earliest trace of the name as John O'Hart shows in his "Irish Pedigrees" is in the Celtic (Erse) form "O' Airmead-haigh", which he says has been anglicised; Armedy, Armidage, Armitage, and Armiytage.

The O'Airmeadhaigh family was one of the "Hy-Niall" Septs. These septs were directly descended from Nial-Mor also called Niall of the nine hostages (Niall naughiallach) (A.D. 378-405). See Keatings history of Ireland. Niall was the son Eochy Morvane (Eochaith Maigh-Medon), son of Muredach Tirech of the line of Heremon the 124th monarch of Ireland, and a first cousin of Lathy, the last Page Monarch of Ireland. Niall himself was the 126th monarch of Ireland. Niall's mother was Carinna-Cas-Dubb, daughter of king of Britain. Niall had twelve, some say, fourteen sons, and eight of his sons became stern fathers of important clans in Ireland. O'Hart says that "Airmeadhach" was a brother of Malodhar Caoch, ancestor of Clann Columin-Dove, the most celebrated of Irish missionaries, known as St. Columba of Iona, Dr. Gammock in his article in the Dictionary of Christian Biography points out that St. Columba was descended from Niall of the nine hostages.

The name "Naoi-ghiollach" was given to Nial on account of the nine hostages he forced his enemies to place in his hands. Sir Walter Scott in "Rokeby", speaks of great "Niall of the pledges nine", and notes that he derived his epithet from "nine nations or tribes whom he held under his subjection, and from whom he took hostages." He exercised a predatory warfare on the coast of England and of Britagne or Armorica, and from the latter country carried away the celebrated St. Patrick. He is said to have been monarch of all Ireland and he was the most powerful of the Scotie dynasty (so called from Scota wife to Gallamn, (Milesius,) the Spanish -Scythian conqueror who landed in Ireland in 1300B.C. (see Keating P.96). He ravaged Britain for many years. He was killed at the Loire by an arrow from Eocha son of Eana, King of Leinster (Mac Googhaghan).

The name Armitage or Armytage was for long centuries found in Yorkshire and Lancashire, and earlier perhaps in Lincolnshire. The form "Hermitage" was also used in Scotland and may be seen in Hermitage Castle and Lord Hermitage, Soulis, Lord of the Hermitage was one of the most powerful nobles, long before the Douglasses arose. It is difficult to find the date of the creation of Hermitage castle but James III wrote in 1481 in regard to the repair of border castles, "and especially the Hermitage which is in maist danger".

Bardsley in his Dictionary of Surnames, says the name is from "Hermitage". It is the local names of Hermitage, once pronounced Harmitage or Armitage, in the North (compare Clark & Clerk, Derby & Darby). The best instance from literature is probably the old use of the word as found in Chaucer's Dreme "Visite the heavenly armitage", (See Oxford Dictionary).

The Kirkburton registers (Yorkshire) contain many forms of the name, viz, Armitage, Armetage, Armytage, Armytegge, Armyteg, Armitage, Harmitage, Hermeytage, Ermetage, Armatage, Armitag, Hermytage, Ermitage, Ermintage, Armytage, Armetegh, Armetadge.

The family of Armytage or Armitage is of great antiquity in the North of England, as may be proved by many undoubted authorities.

There are five pedigrees in the of the family in the Heralds' Visitations in the British museum, of early date.

One pedigree, attested by Sir Henry St. George, Norry King-at-arms, traces the descent of the Kirkless branch attested 2nd Feb. 1637 from John Armytage, (in the copy in the possession of Sir George J. Armytage, Bart, Kirkle Park 1908, it is Armitage), of Mrignbowls (Mrighbole) living tenth King Stephen (1145) which seat coat arms, he is said to have had conferred on him (according to Onfymes, Steward to Remigius, Bishop of cator, Sir George Armytage pointed out, Burke is quite mistaken in saying that Rodger Onfymes conferred the arms, it should read that when John Armitage took the "Manor", he i.e. John Armytage, gave as his arms, "gules, a lion's head erased between three cross crosslettes, argent. (See Lansdowne Mss. No. 900 British Museum). Remigius was the friend of William the Conqueror and exhorted the Norman host at Hastings. He died 1092.

The name Ricardo de Hermitage, occurs with several principal men of York, to the Charter of de Lacey, constable of Chester to the monastery, of St. John, Pontefract, 2nd May 1258. The name Willelimus del Ermytache is found in the Poll tax of the west riding of Yorkshire in 1379. The name Adam del Armitage, is found as witness of a charter in 1395, William del Armitage and Adam del Armitage, held lands in Waltham in 1426.

For early Armitage pedigrees, see Lansdowne Mss, folio 310, British Museum. For Roger Onfymes-Peter Amundeville of Kingerooy, called also Humfines, steward to Remigius of Rescamp, see Harleian Society, Vol XIV, 613.

The Armitages are called the Norman Armitages, and it has always been held that they came to England with (William?) the conqueror. The Rev. Edward Armitage (1908) told me that many years ago he inquired of the Abbe Cochet of Dieppe, a very competent antiquarian, if he knew of any place in Normandy called the Hermitage, and he replied that he knew least three.

The name is traced to Niall of the nine hostages, A.D. 379-405, whose son King Laognaire was converted by St. Patrick at the hill of Tara as was also his brother at Teltown (Taillton) (Donaghpatrick). What explanation is there of the early Irish and Celtic Origin and of the Norman ancestry. Did some member of the family, fighting in France with Niall, or later still, settle to England? In this connection it is necessary to note there appears to be no similarity between the Celtic term for Hermitage and its later use.

There is a curious statement in the January 1907, "Cornhill", from the pen of Andrew Lang page 7, in an article on border literature. Andrew Lang says, "The most enthusiastic admirers of the Ballads were the clever ladies in London, that is, the BORDERERS themselves, the Scotts, Elliots, Armitages, Rutherfords, Kers and all their kith and kin" (Cornhill Smith Elder & Co., 15 Waterloo Place, London, England).

The writer (Anderson, William James) wrote Andrew Lang at the time, thinking that he might have confused the name Armitage with Armstrong, the well-known border family, but received no further light from him, than a mere statement about Hermitage castle.

Note from SAS: Anderson William James, Armitage of London?? Co. Middlesex & Halifax, Nova Scotia, Coat of Arms (Too light to make out).

Notes on the Armitage Family in Ireland

John Armytage of Farnley Tyas, and Huddersfield, Yorkshire, who bought Kirklees Priory in 1565 was, according to Mrs. Collins' Kirkburton Registers, killed off the coast of Ireland at Knockfergus in February, 1574. He was, Mrs. Collins states, a merchant who carried on an extensive trade in Ireland, in which he made a large fortune. Like all the merchants of his time he did all his own traveling, and it is said that he, or one of his family was murdered in Ireland.

On the 14th of September, 1544 (patent Roll, 36 Henry VIII) the king granted to William Ramsdene, few of the possessions of the Priory (Kirklees), including a cottage at Hartshead, three cottages in Huddersfield in the tenure of John Armytage. The name appears also as John Armitage.

The name Thomas del Hermitage, appears in 1437, acting as attorney for several persons to deliver to Sir Thomas Haryngton, therein styled armiger (esquire) possession of certain lands, comprised in a conveyance.

Joseph Armytage (Armitage) grandson of John Armytage named above, was living in Kilkenny in 1608. He was a son of John Armitage of Kirklees, formerly of the middle temple by his second wife, Margery Beaumont-Knight. He was born about 1586. In the Pedigree of Armytage of Kirklees, it is noted "named in his fathers will." No mention is made of his marriage, but under his name appears "Elizabeth Armytage".

William Armitage of Atherdee (Ardee) Ireland, a lieutenant in 1641, whose estates in Atherdee, comprising of 1384 acres, with houses and tenements, in 1666. He is spoken of in 1663, as the grantee of Mullingstown, forfeited in 1641. There is no mention of William Armitage in Lord Ernest Hamilton's History of the Rebellion of 1641. Ardee is mentioned, p. 168 as falling into the hands of Coll McBrian MaoMahon (some margin notes here, none are legible).

The following particulars in reference to William Armitage of Ardee are taken from the public records of Ireland, published by the British government:

1. Petition of William Armitage and others (soldiers) whose lots fell in Ardee town, laid out much money, but afterwards taken from them by a clause in the Act of Settlement. (No date but probably 1666-1684) William Armitage's name is first on list. See annual report, Public Records, 15th Report.
2. Armitage, Wil; Sul d Mar. Inquisitions in Ireland; Ric^tTyrconel demesne lands in Atherdee.

4. William Armitage was intestate in 1674.

William Armitage of Atherdee was living in 1693. He was presumably a son of William Armitage (above) of Ardee.

Timothy Armitage, of Atherdee son and grandson of the two Williams mentioned above, was the elder son of William Armitage.

Timothy Armitage, son of Timothy, was a member of the Irish Parliament for Drogheda, and served also as an Alderman. He gave the bells to (Atherdee) Drogheda Church. Armitage, daughter if William of Atherdee was married before 1697 (Christian and married name unknown).

Robert Armitage of Liverpool, son of Timothy (Sr.) will prove 1761, Robert living afterwards at Kensington. (?).

Hierome Armitage, son of William Armitage of Atherdee, and grandson of William of Ardee was living in Cloumell, County Tipperary, in 1697. Hierome states in 1697 that he "was the only younger, son of William Armitage of Athyrdee, Co. Louth, deceased." When his father died, he was a very young minor. His father died owner of lands near Athyrdee worth 100(?), yearly and intended to leave him 1300. Hierome's mother was alive in 1697 and had 140 yearly from the estate.

Among the descendants of the Ardee family, are the Armitages of Rador, Ross, Herefordshire, England; the third countess of Annesley married 1828; the present dowager countess of Annesley, the celebrated Irish beauty married in 1893; Anne (Armitage), first Lady Clare; Lady Carrick; Dean Jenet Armitage Robinson of Wells, one of the first Scholars in Europe, (d. 1934).

Rev. Timothy Armitage's brother of William Armitage of Ardee, the only Armitage mentioned in Sidney Lees' Dictionary of Biography, who was "added" to the historical "Old Meeting Congressional Church" at Norwich in 1645, became its first praetor (pastor?), in 1647, and who died greatly lamented in Dec. 1656.

Samuel Armitage, son of the Rev. Timothy Armitage late of Gray's Inn, London clerk of the Peace for Wicklow and Carlow, appointed 1663 (?), resigned 30th Dec. 1681.

Anne Armitage, of London, Co. Middlesex, spinster, a minor, daughter and heir of John Armitage, deceased, brother and heir of Francis Armitage Jr. of Laravolty, Co. Cork, Esq. deceased, by her guardian, Mary Armitage of London, Widow, plt. v.s. Wm. Bull of Bandon, Co. Cork, tanner, who has a mortgage on Laravolty.

John Fortune of Castlehaven, Co. Cork, clerk, who married the widow of said Francis Armitage Senior, Joseph Armitage, a younger son of said Francis Armitage, Senior and brother of Francis, Junior, defts. Plt. is suing for possession of lands of Laravolty, part of Glanmacarney and 17 acres in Kinragh, and other lands, all in Co. Cork, which her father's father, Francis Armitage, Senior, owned and which descended to his eldest son, Francis Armitage, Junior. Plt's father, John Armitage deceased, was next brother to Francis. Deft. Joseph claims the lands. Francis Armitage Senior mortgaged Laravolty for £200 to Wm. Bull. (10 Dec. 1674). Chancery answer dated 7 June 1703 of John Fortune, Clerk, deft. to above Bill. Deft. About 24 years ago married the widow of said Francis Armitage Senior, and lived with her at Laravolty till 1683 when they gave it up to Francis Armitage Junior (Francis Jr. born 1662 as he would come of age (21) in 1683), but they got £14 yearly out of it till 1688 in right of the widows' thirds or jointure. Deft. is now living about 20 miles away, his wife is dead but deft. is entitled to arrears at the rate of £14 yearly from 1688 till her death. Francis Armitage Jr. died without issue male, so the lands should descend to deft. Joseph Armitage as his brother and heir male. Chancery Anser – dated 22nd. April 1703 of Wm. Bull, deft. to above Bill. Deft. is nephew and legatee of the Will dated 20th Dec. 1674, of his uncle Wm. Bull to whom said Francis Armitage, Senior on 1st. September 1674 mortgaged Laravolty for £200. That after the death of Francis Armitage, Senior, Francis Armitage Jr. let Laravolty for a term of years to one Jonathan Morgan, who continued in possession till 1688 when the trouble broke out when he died, and let it to tenants, and is now willing to account for his mortgage. That he believes that deft. Joseph Armitage is brother of Francis Armitage, Jr.

Copy of Will proved in Killaloe, Diocese, Ireland. 22 April 1747 (see P. 18):

"In the name of God, Amen, I, John Armitage, of Ballyknavin, being very sick and weak, but of perfect mind and memory, do make my last Will. First, I give my soul to God who gave it.

Next, I leave my body to be buried at the discretion of my brothers Joseph Armitage and Francis Armitage. Next, I leave what worldly substance I am possessed of to be distributed among my two sons, John and Roger Armitage, and my Daughter Susan Armitage, at the discretion of my two brothers, Joseph A. and Francis A. after a fair discount with my landlord. And I do likewise institute and appoint my above-named brothers to be sole executors to this my last will and testament. As witness my hand and seal this 12th. day of April 1747.

Record Office Dublin, Chancery Bill 13 Nov. 1671

John Ru__xton and William Armitage, plt. vs. Arthur Bulkeley of Dundalke plt. states. that they and on John Faulkes, since deceased, owned right of soldiers for services in the rebellion a corn mill at Atherdee Bridge, and on 3 July 1658, they leased it to deft, then of Dundalk for 31 years, at L11 yearly for the 1st 2 years and L20 yearly for the rest of the term. That deft. went into possession but has never paid any rent, and has taken out a certificate and letters patent in his own name.

Chancery Answer 17 Jan. 1671 of Arthur Bulkeley, deft, to above Bill of John Ruxton and William Armitage (partly defaced) admits lease and that he has paid no rent and has taken out certificates and letters patent in his own name. Plts. did not perform their part of the covenants in lease. Deft. had to buy up other lands on other side of the rivers from other persons whose names he gives.

Chancery Bill 10th Nov. 1681

George Addee of Atherdee, Co. Louth, Miller, Timothy Armitage of Atherdee, Co. Louth, gentleman. Mary Foules, widow of John Ruxton, 3 co-owners of a mill. Plt. states, that on 2 Feb. 1678 he took a lease from deft. Armitage for corn mill at Atherdee for 11 years at £20 yearly rent, which lease he surrendered in 1680 and got a clear receipt for rent in presence of his son Thos. Addee. Because about 1680, Mr. Buckley who had another mill under same roof changed it from a tuck mill to a corn mill.

Book of Survey and Distribution in Record Office Dublin

Extract from letter of Tenison Groves, 33 Mt. Merrion Ave., Blackrock, Co. Dublin, dated 11th June 1904 to Rev. W.J. Armitage, Halifax, N.S. "As to Rhody Armitage said to have forfeited Kilcolman and Tullamore in 1641, I consider it is a myth. I consider the tradition arises either 1. from an Armitage having had a lease for a term of years from the Finchs of Kilcolman etc. which has expired, or (2) From your being maternally descended from the O'Hogans who did forfeit Kilcolman and Tullaghmore in 1641. I noticed the surname Hogan in the Nenagh Parish registers showing there were Protestants of that name about 1770..... The Nenagh Parish registers commence 1740. I have searched them till 1791 when a gap occurs extending to 1805. I only found, "Elizabeth Armitage, daughter of William Armitage and (his wife) Mary Mealy, was born the 21st Apr. 1782 and baptized 9th May following. The words "his wife" are not in original but it is in the ordinary form of all the entries, when the child was illegitimate, the entry states so. There are also several entries showing that here were Protestants families of Magrath and Hogan in that neighbourhood, and several families of Hodgens in both Nenagh and Modreeny. The registers of Monsea parish commence 1811. I searched the last volume and found no Armitage entries. Notes from Equity suits.

Exchequer Bill dated 9th June 1716

Edmond Carrol, late of Dungaron, Co. Waterford. Dannis Bryan, late of Goron, Co. Kilkenny, both now of Carrick, Co. Tipperary, Millers and Mill Carpenters plts. v. John Newport of Carrick, Co. Tipperary, gentleman. James Hanrahan, Wm. Charles. John Armitage, Francis Wall. John Bray, Anthony Skelton, Tho. Tobin, Cath Geagh, widow, Dermot Boyne, John Strange, Robt. Roy, John Fleming, John Comane, Pat Comerford. Tho. Wright, Chas. Kennedy, Tho. Wadding, Arthur Kenedy, Nich Mulrony, Wm. Murphy, Math Ford, Richard Powers, Tho. Reily, Rich Forwood, Roger Magraith, Wm. Roch, Tho. Woolf, Tho. Fanin, Tho. Honrahan, Tho. Holiday, Pat Hagherin, and Garret Dalton, defts. Evidently then Rody Armitage did not marry and R.C. Magrath or Maraith.

Plts. on 24 Nov. 1713 agreed with deft. Newport who held the 2 grist mills of the Manor of Carrick from James Butler, Duke of Armonde and which were then fallen down and ruinous. That Newport should rebuild them and lease them to plts. for £15. fine at L80 yearly rent for 21 years. In accordance with agreement, Newport commenced the rebuilding but afterwards agreed with plts. that they should finish the work for £50. which they did.

Afterwards Newport induced the other defts. to send their corn to other mills. When Defts. Armitage and Wall promised that if plts. would lease them 1/2 mills, they would induce the other defts. and the rest of the inhabitants of Carrick to patronize the mills. Plts. leased 1/2 the mills to Armitage and Wall for no other consideration but instead of carrying out their agreement, they transferred their lease to Deft. Newport who has evicted plts. on 1st March 1714. Exchequer answer dated 12th Nov. 1716 of defts. Newport Hanrahan and Charles to above. Bill not examined.
